COMMENTS OF THE DAY

Disquiet Persists

THE sudden illness and even more audden operation which President Eisenhower has undergone-all in a space of about three days-and his ostensibly rapid improvement may leave the world with a feeling of admiration for the skill of American surgeons. But the glib, unanimous assurances of the doctors Hagerty, cannot dispel the disquiet aroused by the swift succession of

The President has taken his first steps (we earnestly to a complete recovery) already, But the impression one gains the doctors, is that politically prescient no doubt, are not being wholly sincere in their almost jolly "nothing - to - worryabout" attitude.

An operation of this nature on a man of 65 who is occupying "the most killing job in the world" and who is being asked to accept a four-year extension of office is not one that deserves to be lumped into the same category as even an aggressive bout of indigestion or gastric flu, which is what the press statements tend to suggest.

Here there are two considerations. One is that the President will have to make up his mind before August 20, the date of the Republican Party's nominating convention. The other point-and this is more important and should have the greatest bearing on his decision-is the reaction of the American public, which is now faced with the problem of making up its mind about a serious illnesses in less than R. and of Mr Eisenhower's DOCTORS' LATEST BULLETIN Washington, June 10.

The Republican Party's election campaign gathered steam again today with the latest favourable reports on President Eisenhower's condition.

Republicans were elated by the doctors' assurances that the President would make a complete recovery from his intestinal operation and would be fit to run for re-election. The optimistic reports being issued from Walter Reed military hospital today lifted their hopes of winning next, November's presidential

But the opposition Democrats were equally encouraged by the new element of uncertainty injected into the campaign and the continuing speculation that Mr Eisenhower's political future was in doubt, no matter how rapid or complete a recovery he made.

Bidding Clues Help Declarer

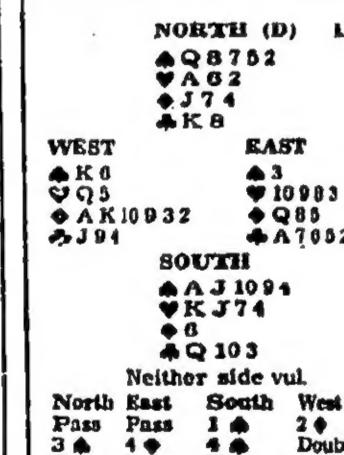

By OSWALD JACOBY

If you were playing today's hand at four spades without any bidding by the opponents, you'd go down. You would lose a dlamond and a club as a matter of course. You would try the spade finesse, losing to the king; and you'd try a heart finesse, losing to the queen.

The situation was different when Steve Barrett of New York played the hand in the recent Vanderbilt Cup tournament. West's bidding was the important clue.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the ace of diamonds. South ruffing. Steve saw no reason to tackle the arumps immediately, especially since he already suspected that a finesse would fail. To get more information, Steve led a club, losing dummy's king to East's ace.

Steve had considered the possibility that West had bid and doubled on good diamonds

TRAVELLING LIGHT

By EILEEN ASCROFT

MANY women go wrong their holiday travel clothes. They choose cotton frocks with taste, swim suits with care, and then think any old suit will do for the journey.

fashion photographer John Antill and myself — today are concentrating on practical travel clothes that marry in happily with the rest of the wardrobe.

Travelling light was one of our first objectives. That is why we advocate only one allpurpose coat and a dress and jacket that will be more useful than a suit. Combing the shops for the perfect coat, Rix discovered "the answer to a holiday girl's prayer." It is loose, straight and unlined, made of washable worsted and Terylene. The beauty of it is that it is entirely creaseproof and dirtresisting, very important if you are travelling by car or train. Rix chose a lemon shade for sketching, but it is also made in ice blue, navy, black and natural. Personally, I loved the last shade.

EASY PACKING

Rix likes to see a girl arriving at the end of her journey as neat and attractive as when she set out. Under the coat he suggests an all-round pleated skirt - again in washable worsted and Terylene in lemon.

The matching Orion sweater has short sleeves. And in her suitcasse she will pack a cornpamon golfer-style cardigan with long sleeves.

"Holiday hats must be easily packed," stipulated Rix, and chose a pull-on shape in paisley-patterned cotton, with a lemon ground and navy and scarlet design.

Shoes and handbag are "coordinates," in gay scarlet and will look good with cotton frocks as well. The shoes have a "petite" heel, more restful for the foot then high ones for walking.

HQLIDAY HATS

Two other holiday hats, which pack absolutely flat, get good marks from our trio. Rix proud of his travelling "find." has sketched the first in navy The crease-resisting dress in gabordine. It clips over at the rayon alpaca is slim in line, with

It costs 20s, Od, "High fashion at a low price," says John, "but it should be worm high on the brow, just above the cycbrows." Pat completes her charming travel outfit with washable white fabric gloves and a softtopped suitcase specially lightweight for flying.

DUAL ROLE

While John and Rix were choosing the main travel outfits. I was scarching for pretty and practical bargains to pack in the case. The gossamer nylon pyjamas were too sheer to photograph, but they're glamorous enough for a honeymoon. The trousers have Turkish style legs, and the short loose jacket has the puff sleeves and a yoled trimmed with

I liked them best in rose pink or hyacinth blue, but they can also be bought in peach or peacock blue.

Nylon is undoubtedly the travel girl's friend. It can be rinsed through and dried over without ironing, and it adds practically nothing, to luggage weight by air.

Practical idea is combining a dressing gown and beach coat for space-saving. I have discovered a delightful! "brunch" cost, which does double duty. In fowelling, it is day-length

Christine Truman Is Ready To Work For Success

By DOROTHY LITTLE

When I first went to see 15-year-old Christine Truman I hardly looked where she was hitting the ball. I just watched how she moved and played her strokes. backswing a trifle. Penetration seems an odd word to apply to tennis, but it describes perfectly a drive that has pace, length, and controlled direction.

This Christine has in no small measure for one so young. Her game has been very evenly developed with no glaring weakness

This is most important as it doesn't take a good pluyer long to expose and exploit and

If you meet someone who has a very obvious weakness don't concentrate entirely on that flank, but expose the weakness by playing first to the strong market, following news of Pre-Elsenhower's illness, joined with increasing reports of textile mill curtailment, in pushing more traders to the sidelines to await developments. Uncertainties about application of the soil bank law to the growing crop, and the generally favourable tenor of the crop news, were additional handlcaps to new market interest. Uppermost interest centred on the Impending sales out of the government surplus stock. The Commodity Credit Corporation announced bids for sale out of the stock will be accepted June 12, or one week corlier than ortginally scheduled. The advanced date was welcomed since it shortened the overhanging period of uncertainty.

NO LIMITATION

The agency placed no limitation on the quantity to be offered at the low prices directed by Congress. Trade opinion was divided on how low the minimum acceptance price will be, but some fracters thought it will be lower than the recent sales made around the 27 1/2 cent a pound figure. The low price on the sale made last January was 251/2 cents.

AMERICAN BUSINESS PLUS-MINUS WEEK

Layoffs, Cutbacks, Increased Consumer Debt-But There Was Record Personal Income

JOHN MORKA

New York, June 10.

This was a plus and minus week for American business. On the minus side: The auto slump continues. There were new production layoffs, production cutbacks. Housing construction lags. Money continues tight. Competition in appliance and television remains rugged on heavy inventories. Farm machinery output strike as labour-management sit down to talk about a new contract. Consumer debt moves higher. Inventories at wholesale levels move higher as sales drop. And there was an easier price trend for some basic commodities, rubber, copper, steel scrap. Stock prices sag also.

On the plus side: A record level of personal income with farmers showing some improvement also; expectations of big corporate earnings this year. Along with record dividends disbursement. Continued strong demand for capital goods, machine tools, electric motors; heavy expenditures by America's industrial giants for new plant construction; employment continues near top levels.

Billion Tariff Cut By US Under GATT

By Thomas Weyer

Washington, June 10.

The United States has granted new tariffs concessions on nearly $1,000,000,000 worth of goods imported from foreign nations, the State Department announced last week.

The United States and 21 other governments associated in the General Agreement of Tariffs and Trade (GATT) negotiated new tariff rates during four months of discussions at Geneva, Switzerland, that ended on May 23. GATT is an international organisation of 35 countries designed slow demand for finished to lower trade barriers between nations.

US tariffs were cut by as at $145,890,000 in 1954, or 29 Seeing the possibility of much as 15 per cent on items per cent of total United Kingstaggered over a three-year period with the first cut to go increase

> Canada, Italy, West, Germany and the Benelux nations ranked next in volume of trade covered by US concessions,

More favourable tariffs were put on goods imported from Italy with a 1954 value of $40,029,000. The new concessions will affect 33.7 per cent of dutiable Italian imports.

Nearly all linlian import items received the full 15 per cent tariff cut. This means tariffs will decrease by five per cent on June 30 and by five per cent each in 1957 and 1958.

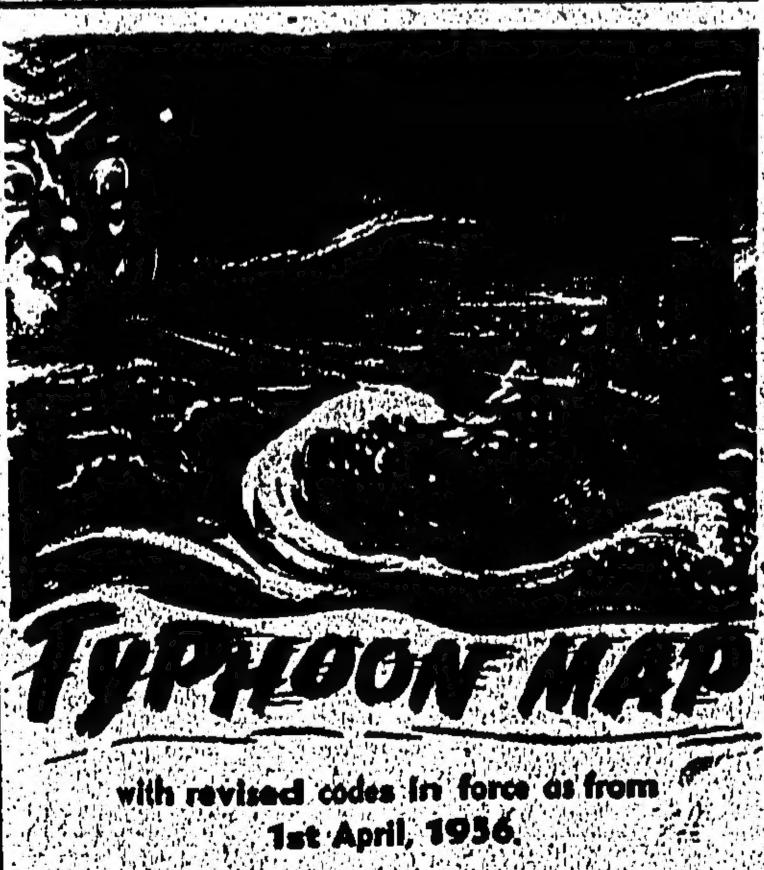

The Benelux nations received lower duties for 9.2 per cont of their total experts to the United States. Concessions were made on goods valued in 1954 at $32,522,000. Products affected include some chemicals, sheet, rolled and plate glass.

. The Coal and Steel Pool took part in the GATT neigotlations for the first time, acting as' agent for its six member states. The Community negotiated certain tariff reductions on iron and steel products for Germany, Italy and Franco.

Deeper Cuts

The Community did not negotiate reductions for the Benelux states because their tariff rates generally are lower than those of the other three poll members.

A number of GATT nations offered much deeper tariff cuts than did the United States. More than 80 per cent of all German concessions were better than 25 per cent. Mr Rea referred to a minute in Keny's file on January 1956, in which he stated that after many meetings and consultations on the question of Tsao's prospecting rights over the adjacent strip Tsao had accepted him as an intermediary and was willing to forgo his rights in consideration

Keay said that he signed this minute in Tsao's presence and Tsao should have signed it too. He said "I handed it to him to rign, but while we were talking, he didn't sign,"

Keay said the sum of $25,000 hed caready been agreed upon way back in September last your, but there it was necessary to record the minute until everything had been fixed up from the syndicate is point of view. Mr Hong Siles had agreed, but at that time he had maney?—It is not a great sum.

A Little Patience

Keay agreed that until the making out of the resolution which was signed on the 28.h. there was nothing in writing between Teao and the syndicate about the paying of $25,000.

Mr Ren asked Keay what he would have done if, having paid the money to Tsao, the syndicate broke up. Keay replied that it would have been most embarrassing to him. But by that time, he explained he knew men Wheelock gentlemen called Buchanan and Goodman recently started a small record company called "Lundverse" and produced a disc called "Flying Saucer". On it can be heard brief excerpts from fifteen hitparade records and some little tie-up by the flying saucer

As soon as this record was released two things happened almost simultaneously. The public liked it and started to ask in the shops, and the publishers of the discs from which the excerpts were taken started phoning their legal advisers, asking how they could stop what they called plracy. Great was he noise and there was much chaos, Some radio stations refused to play the disc in case they were found guilty of compounding a felony, others i plugged it as hard as they could with reckless abandon.

After several weeks of suspense the picture began to clear and at the last report Messrs Buchanan and Goodman had not been arrested, were in no immediate danger of being ro and were meed with only one problem; getting as many records pressed as the public were demanding over the record ccumer,

As the turnoil subsided two interesting things happened. The criginal hit-parade discs from which snatches had been used were moving up in the sales figures and in one or two also to cases a song which was on its
